INTRODUCTION Birth Records of the 1880's

The first official birth records in Henry County were recorded in 1883. Birth attendants were required by the state of Missouri to fill out a form (as shown below) and return it to the county clerk within 30 days of the birth, or face a penalty of $10.00. Either a good sum of money was raised in this fashion, or the clerk simply waived the fine, because many returns arrived at the courthouse several months, even years after the actual birth. Basically, the birth attendant, or a neighbor, would bring the forms to the courthouse in Clinton whenever they got around to it. Most, but not all, of the recorded births were attended by either a physician or midwife. There may have been just as many more unattended births that were never reported.

A reproduction of an 1880's Return of Birth Record

Up to 1996, the books containing these early records (except for book #5), were thought to be lost sometime during the 1970's. Thanks to a new construction project at the courthouse, the remaining four books were discovered in the back of the vault that is now a new elevator shaft, and are now in safe possession of the Genealogical Research Library in the Henry County Museum, Clinton. This work is a complete listing of the births recorded in those books.

ORGANIZATION and SPELLING

The surnames in this book are organized in alphabetical order and sorted secondly by the mother's given name and the year of the child's birth. Correct spelling of a name throughout the book may be considered unusual. All of the information was entered as it appeared (or seemed to appear) in the original record. Every conceivable combination of letters that sound like the name you are searching for should be checked. Capital letters that are most often confused with each other are S & L; M, N & W; T & F; and J. & I. Initials were especially hard to decipher. Words or names that were unreadable were given a "best guess" and underlined along with places or dates that were questionable.

CHILD'S NAME, SEX and COLOR

Most infants were not given a name at the time of birth, and many remained unnamed at the age of one or two years. This was a necessity due to the high death rate of children at that time, and based on the custom of orderly and repetitive use of family names. The parents simply did not wish to use up their names before the end of their childbearing years.

The sex of the child is given after the name (or unnamed), and is followed by the color if black or mulatto. White was generally not recorded and was taken as a given fact if not otherwise indicated, since most of the population of this county were white. Judging from other historical works, a large number of black births were unrecorded.

DATE OF BIRTH (b:), PLACE and CHILD NUMBER

Following the child's date of birth is the place of birth, which is also the residence of the mother. In the few cases where these differ, a notation beginning with "res:" follows this entry. The township names are basically the same as they are today, although there are some minor exceptions concerning the boundaries of some.

The child number is given immediately before the name of the mother. The 5th child of Sarah Smith may actually be her fifth birth, or may be her 7th if two children died previously. The way this number was used seems to be based on the preference of the recording doctor or the person supplying the information.

PARENTAL INFORMATION

Look for variations in the mother's and father's first names. Martha Jane may be listed as M. J., Jane, Janie, Mattie, all of these, or just plain "Mrs". Maiden names, if given, are in capital letters and a "Maiden Name Index" is located in the back of the book to help find other family members. Be very suspicious of the maiden name ... these were misspelled or recorded incorrectly more often than any other piece of information in the books and should be verified using other documents.

The mother's and father's ages at the time of birth are followed by their approximate year of birth (bca:), and place of birth. The "bca:" is a calculated number based on the age given. If both the age and year of child's birth were correctly recorded, the "bca" will be accurate within plus or minus one year. At that time, there was a tendency to exaggerate age, especially with men over 50. The older the person, the higher amount of respect they deserved. (I wish they'd bring that notion back into vogue!)

The information following "fth:" (father) is his given name only. In the rare cases where his surname is different than the child's, it is given after his first name in capital letters.

The occupation of the father (occ:) is listed after his vitals. Most men were listed as farmers, but there were plenty of other areas of employment, such as:

accountants, bookkeepers, clerks, school teachers, preachers, physicians, bankers and real estate brokers architects, house carpenters, bridge builders, painters, engineers & surveyors attorneys, postmasters, mail carriers, circuit clerks, collectors, judges and sheriffs barbers (tonsorial artists), bartenders, teamsters, miners (collier), millers, tanners, silversmiths & blacksmiths broom, barrel (cooper), brick, carriage, harness, and cigar makers dry goods, implements, produce, grain, grocery, flour and livestock merchants railroaders, wood choppers, day laborers, lumbermen, livery men, bakers, hotel keepers (hosteler) & pawn brokers machinist, nurserymen, photographers, plumbers, jewelers, potters, marble cutters and even an electrician!
One man described himself as a "Jack of all Trades", and another was listed as a "loafer"!

NATIONALITY { }

This information was included if other than American, USA or Native, and is enclosed in "{ }", and does not necessarily indicate that the person was born overseas. Many times it simply refers to the person's descent from ancestors of that country.

BIRTH ATTENDANT (att:)

There were no shortages of doctors in Henry County in the 1880's. Even the smallest communities had at least one resident M.D. P. S. Jennings and John H. Britts were two of the busiest baby doctors. Other active birth attendants were the midwives such as: Caroline Mann and Anna Peters of Clinton, Catherine Renfro of Calhoun; Jane Neptune of Montrose and Minerva Knisely of Brownington. In several instances the father or grandmother of the child attended the birth and reported it to the courthouse.

ORIGINAL RECORDS (bk:)

At the end of each entry is the book and page number where the original record may be found. The books may be viewed at the Genealogical Research Library in the Henry County Museum, Clinton. Call 816-885-8414 for the days and times they are open. The volunteers there can also help you with just about any kind of family history research in the Henry County area for a small fee.

STILLBIRTHS

Book #1 was divided into two sections: births and stillborn. The stillborn section covered 1883 to 1890, but apparently very few of these were recorded. The information contained name, sex, birth date, place, parents and their places of birth and nationality, period of gestation, cause of death, birth attendant and place of burial.

CONCLUSION

Putting this book together took a great deal of time and eye-strain. Trying to decipher the old "curly" handwriting was sometimes maddening, and on many occasions I caught myself holding the books sideways and upside down, in an attempt to make letters out of some of the scrawls.

It was tough ... but fun, and immensely educating.

At one point I had the idea that I should correct all of the names I knew were misspelled. Fortunately, I gave that up after realizing that no one really knows how our ancestors spelled their names, and those who could not write let other people spell for them. By correcting them we could loose a key to the past. And Lord knows we've lost enough keys in our lifetime.

I hope this book becomes a valuable aid in your family history study.

Good Luck & Good Research,

Linda M. Everhart
